ERIN'S DAY

The City in Gala Dress in Honor of Good St. Patrick.

Ireland's Flag Floats Proudly in the March Breeze.

Mammoth Parade of Irish Societies Led by the Gallant Sixty-ninth.

Ten Thousand Brave Irish Patriots Reviewed by Mayor Grant.

Banquets This Evening, With Speakers of World-Wide Renown.

A glitter of green in the sunlight dancing. The air of an old song soft and sweet. And the measured marching of men advancing. In brave array through the crowded street. O'er the flag in the waste of waters. What tender thoughts do these things portray. To the eager eyes of thy sons and daughters. With each return of St. Patrick's Day!

If good old St. Patrick could materialize himself and drop in on Gotham today his boom would no doubt swell with feelings of pride and gratification as he contemplated the grand preparations which his loyal followers on this side of the Atlantic have made to honor his memory and celebrate the great Irish national festival.

In fact, this St. Patrick's Day extraordinary, for it is years and years since floats from the topmost flagstaff and at both wings of the building.

Colors were flying about town, and the decorations of flags and bunting were especially gay in the streets on the line of the parade. In many of the windows the red, white and blue was interwoven with the green, and all the hotels and public buildings presented a gala appearance.

An immense Irish flag was flying from the top of the Emigrant Savings Bank, and could be seen from all sides in the city.

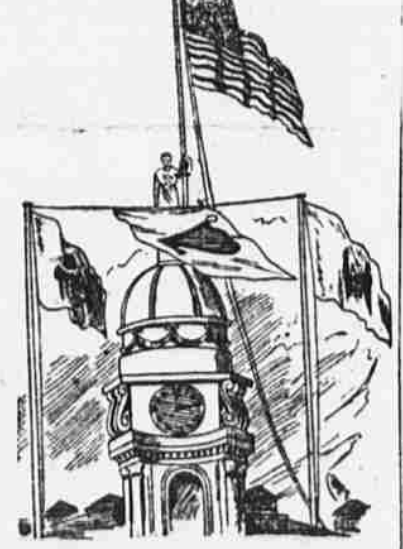

GRAND MARCHAL JAMES LAMB. The lower part of the city. The school children were all with little green paper flags, and the men all brought out their high hats, and decorated them with little sprigs of shamrock whenever they were fortunate enough to secure a bit of the genuine article, and with imitation paper shamrocks if they were not. Patriotic ladies came out decorated with green ribbons and bows, and even the household pots were decorated with green in honor of the day.

Nor were the street car and truck horns forgotten by their patriotic drivers, but they also showed in the general holiday adornment.

Even the grass in the parks was as green as it could be, for although it got a good start a week ago, its brightness has been somewhat dimmed by the recent severe frosts.

SPECIAL SERVICES IN HONOR OF THE DAY were held this morning in nearly all the Catholic churches in the city. The most elaborate ceremony was at St. Patrick's Cathedral, where high mass was celebrated at 10 o'clock.

This was attended by the Sixty-ninth Regiment in full dress uniform. The IRISH FLAG ON THE CITY HALL. The Irish-American citizens of New York have shown such general and active interest in making the holiday genuine and universal, and the celebration of March 17, 1890, promises to go down into history as one of the most memorable on record.

There was a St. Patrick feeling in the air before sunrise, which at noon became so pronounced that every one caught the infection, and to-night there will be enough of it to go all around an unlimited number of times and to spare.

Even the professional weather jugglers have gone back on their traditional reputation for meanness on St. Patrick's Day.

IRISH FLAG ON THE EMIGRANT SAVINGS BANK. And instead of putting a pillard or a drizzling rainstorm on the meteorological programme, have actually condescended to dole out an installment of perfect weather.

Bright, cheerful sunshine and a cool, bracing atmosphere are just what is needed to keep the spirits of the holiday-makers up to the proper pitch of enthusiasm, and this year they are evidently not to be disappointed.

Following the time-honored custom, Mayor Grant directed the green flag of Erin to be displayed conspicuously from the City Hall, and early this morning it was sung out to the breeze by Keeper Kees, and was given the place of honor for one day in the year right between the State and municipal standards, while the National stars and stripes

Tammany Leader Bernard F. Martin Indicted and Arrested.

Five Other High Sheriff's Officers Also Indicted.

Charges of Corruptly Taking Money from Lu-Law Srael Jail Prisoners.

There were sensational developments to-day in the inquiry by the Grand Jury into the charges of corruption in the Sheriff's office and Ludlow Street Jail.

Many witnesses were examined this morning, and indictments were found against the following:

Bernard F. Martin, Deputy Commissioner of Public Works, ex-Officer of Arrest, ex-Coroner and Tammany leader in the Seventh District.

Deputy Sheriff Joseph Young.

Stephen J. Sullivan, Deputy in the Order of Arrest Department of the Sheriff.

Special Deputies Hibbard and Lindeman, also of the Order of Arrest Department.

Shortly after noon the Grand Jury filed into Judge Martine's court-room in General Sessions, and the foreman presented a batch of papers to the Judge.

Subsequently it was learned that bench warrants had been issued for several prominent officials, and it was variously reported that the Deputy Commissioner of Public Works, Bernard F. Martin, and Mayor Grant were among the accused.

Deputy Sheriff Joseph Young, Stephen J. Sullivan, Deputy in the Order of Arrest Department of the Sheriff, and Hibbard and Lindeman, Special Deputies of the Sheriff, were also among the accused.

At 10 o'clock Mr. Martin was seen crossing Chambers street in company with ex-Senators Grady and Plunkett. Mr. Franklyn followed closely behind. Martin admitted that he had been indicted, but he said he was not in the room and arranged.

Ex-Senator Grady appeared as his counsel and asked that he be admitted to bail.

Judge Martine said that he would prefer Judge Fitzgerald's court, but the prosecution said it would be impossible to reach him to-day.

"As I understand it, this charge is made against me," said Judge Martine. "I am not a Tammany man, but I am a citizen, and I will defend myself as such." "The indictment charges bribery," he said.

"Well, in that case," answered the Judge, "I will hold Mr. Martin in $10,000 bail. He can plead next Monday."

Martin was then taken back to the District Attorney's office, and was subsequently released, his bondsmen being Charles Golden, of South Fifth avenue, and ex-Senator Plunkett, of 442 West Fifty-first street.

They qualified in the sum of $5,000 each.

Assistant District Attorney Lindsay was asked by an EVENING WORLD reporter to be allowed a glance at the indictment, but he declined to do so.

The indictment against Mr. Martin charges bribery in receiving the sum of $700 from Charles G. Franklyn for which, it is alleged, Martin allowed the prisoner to leave the Ludlow Street Jail for the purpose of visiting his counsel, Mr. Lindsay.

It is alleged that he was allowed to leave the jail every day for eight days, remaining away the greater part of the time, and in fact only sleeping there at night.

Franklyn was arrested on March 17, 1887, for an alleged swindling operation, by which his cousin, Sir Rache-Cunard, Bart., of London, England, was defrauded of $2,000.

They qualified in the sum of $5,000 each.

Jersey City's Big Parade.

In Jersey City there was a liberal display of flags from public buildings and many business houses, the Irish colors being prominent everywhere. A procession of Irish societies formed on Grand street, comprising about thirty thousand men, headed by the Hibernian Rifles and with Dominick Reynolds as Grand Marshal, and marched through the city, the grand marshal viewed at 12 o'clock by Mayor Cleveland and the members of the city government from the balcony of the City Hall.

The procession had twenty-two sections, each with a band. After the review the parade was reviewed by Mayor Cleveland and the members of the city government from the balcony of the City Hall.

A big parade of the Ancient Order of Hibernians passed through the principal streets of Long Island City this forenoon, and was reviewed by Mayor Gleason and members of the Common Council at 1 o'clock City Hall. Philip T. Smith was Grand Marshal, and Michael Callahan and Thomas Rooney as aides.

Quiet Day in Newark.

There was no parade of Irish societies in Newark, though there was a liberal display of bunting. The day was very quiet, observed.

Westchester County's Celebration.

The principal celebration in Westchester County was held at New Rochelle. The village was literally decorated with bunting and Irish flags. A big parade was organized, including the Irish societies, and the parade was reviewed by Mayor Gleason and members of the Common Council at 1 o'clock City Hall.

Arrival of the New Boes of Immigrants at the Custom-House.

Ex-Congressman John H. Weber, of Buffalo, who was recently appointed Superintendent of Immigration, arrived at the Custom-House to-day and reported at 11 o'clock to Collector Edwards.

He was not sworn in to-day, but received the greetings of a number of friends in the collector's office for half an hour, then he and the collector went to the Parole Office, where they boarded a revenue cutter to take a look at the proposed immigrant landing site and docks in the bay.

Several weeks ago the Government decided to abolish Castle Garden and do away with the entire system of receiving immigrants, and they are now in the process of carrying out this plan.

MORROW, O., March 17.—An incendiary fire here this morning destroyed ten horses, and a large number of other property. The fire broke out at 10 o'clock, and the horses were cremated. The loss estimated at $20,000.

Deputy Sheriff Joseph Young.

Stephen J. Sullivan, Deputy in the Order of Arrest Department of the Sheriff.

Special Deputies Hibbard and Lindeman, also of the Order of Arrest Department.

Shortly after noon the Grand Jury filed into Judge Martine's court-room in General Sessions, and the foreman presented a batch of papers to the Judge.

Subsequently it was learned that bench warrants had been issued for several prominent officials, and it was variously reported that the Deputy Commissioner of Public Works, Bernard F. Martin, and Mayor Grant were among the accused.

Deputy Sheriff Joseph Young, Stephen J. Sullivan, Deputy in the Order of Arrest Department of the Sheriff, and Hibbard and Lindeman, Special Deputies of the Sheriff, were also among the accused.

At 10 o'clock Mr. Martin was seen crossing Chambers street in company with ex-Senators Grady and Plunkett. Mr. Franklyn followed closely behind. Martin admitted that he had been indicted, but he said he was not in the room and arranged.

Ex-Senator Grady appeared as his counsel and asked that he be admitted to bail.

Judge Martine said that he would prefer Judge Fitzgerald's court, but the prosecution said it would be impossible to reach him to-day.

"As I understand it, this charge is made against me," said Judge Martine. "I am not a Tammany man, but I am a citizen, and I will defend myself as such." "The indictment charges bribery," he said.

"Well, in that case," answered the Judge, "I will hold Mr. Martin in $10,000 bail. He can plead next Monday."

Martin was then taken back to the District Attorney's office, and was subsequently released, his bondsmen being Charles Golden, of South Fifth avenue, and ex-Senator Plunkett, of 442 West Fifty-first street.

They qualified in the sum of $5,000 each.

Assistant District Attorney Lindsay was asked by an EVENING WORLD reporter to be allowed a glance at the indictment, but he declined to do so.

The indictment against Mr. Martin charges bribery in receiving the sum of $700 from Charles G. Franklyn for which, it is alleged, Martin allowed the prisoner to leave the Ludlow Street Jail for the purpose of visiting his counsel, Mr. Lindsay.

It is alleged that he was allowed to leave the jail every day for eight days, remaining away the greater part of the time, and in fact only sleeping there at night.

Franklyn was arrested on March 17, 1887, for an alleged swindling operation, by which his cousin, Sir Rache-Cunard, Bart., of London, England, was defrauded of $2,000.

They qualified in the sum of $5,000 each.
